

ALCOHOL

Mark original container with identifiers.

Place the bottles in a cardboard box. Padding may be added to secure the item.

Seal the box with evidence tape.

Helpful Tip

- If a fingerprint exam is required refer to the Latent Prints section for tips.

- If alcohol evidence is not considered crucial to prosecution, empty and discard containers at the scene and document said action in report and or property log. Photograph if possible.
- If alcohol is retained and there are several containers of the same brand, consider keeping one container of each brand and discarding the rest.
- Alcohol in original keg, case, six pack, or cooler container may remain as is. Mark and/or affix tag to the original container and secure to prevent loss of contents.
